

Serv It Up with ServSafe Alcohol

Your Guide to Serving Alcohol Responsibly – Checking IDs

TAKE THAT ID AND CHECK IT TWICE—FIND OUT WHO IS NAUGHTY OR NICE

Being able to accurately inspect an ID is a valuable skill that will help protect your customers and your organization. There are several things you should look for before accepting an ID. See if you can identify any features that indicate the ID is invalid.

Serv It Up with ServSafe Alcohol

Your Guide to Serving Alcohol Responsibly – Checking IDs

See correct answers below. Checking IDs is just one aspect of responsible alcohol service. Make sure your team is prepared to serve alcohol responsibly this holiday season. To learn more about ServSafe Alcohol training, visit ServSafe.com/ServSafe-Alcohol.

An expired license is never valid.

Minors often use the expired license of a family member or a friend who has been issued a new one.

Wrong photo.

The photo is used to verify that the person presenting the ID is its owner.

Too young.

The birth date can be used to calculate the age of the guest.

No signature.

The signature can be used to verify that the person presenting the ID is its owner.